

A minimum spanning tree is a subset of the edges of a connected, undirected graph that connects all the nodes together without forming any cycles, and with the minimum possible total edge weight.

